WAKE UP!

YOU'RE LOSING MONEY

Why didn't you buy United Verde

It was 50 cents then. It's $28 now.

It was $5 three years ago. It went

Or Interstate - Callahan, or Cale-

Did you know that the biggest boom since the days of 49 has struck the

Did you know that new millionaires by the dozen are shooting up out of the

Is the red-light really out on the Pa-

Does paternal irrigation pay in Australia? Read the analysis by Edward

And you'll like "In Aloha Land," by Emerson Hough tells a fascinating story of Claxton, N. W. M. P., in the French trenches. Hugh Johnson in Harry Carr writes entertainingly of

There are lots of other good things and the usual splendid illustrations in

AUGUST SUNSET

15 Cents On All News Stands

"Viva Ruiz" hits the bull's eve.

our "sociable war" with Mexico.

cific Coast? Read what Arno Dosch to $100 and paid $40 a share dividends

Extension a year ago?

West's lodes and veins?

Katherine P. Mayhew.

reports about it.

F. Adams.

Saturday, August 19, 1916.

uncertain day. Although Venus

A uncertain day. Althouses and Mercury are in benefic aspect, Saturn and Uranus are adverse. The planets are read as indicating an upheaval of public thought, which will not only affect political conditions but extend to religious institutions.

Women have a fairly favorable rule teday, but they should beware of false

last year.

Or Butte & Superior?

GIRL AND A MAN

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER,

Phil's Father Learns That His Son Knows the New Secretary.

(Copyright 1916 Star Company) CHAPTER XVII. GNES MORLEY had come downtown with a sense of nervousness on the morning of the day on which Philip Hale was to onter his

She feared that she would find it a little hard at first to become accustomed to the young man's preximity, and yet to give no sign of her previous accountnance with him.

She had, during the days that had passed since the spisode of her dictation for Mr. Bainbridge, grown accustomed to her new position. Things had gone smoothly. She had been surprised and relieved to note that the junior member of the firm, on meeting her going in or out of the office, simply howed pleasantly, as he might have bowed to another man, only with more deference in his manner. Could she have misjudged him entirely? Her faith in her own intuitions was shaken by this man's demeanor.

Mr. Hale had been busy and had treated her in the businessilka way that she had been busy and had treated her in the businessilka way that she had been prepared for. She liked it, too, for she understood now just what her duties were, and she took a pride in performing them with the precision of the machine to which she hold likened herself, but also with an intelligence which she hoped might soon rank her above the ordinary secretary. She did not expect praise from Mr. Hale. Yet he uttered an occasional curt word of commendation that thrilled her with satisfaction.

Now that Philip was coming down here could matters be just as they had been? They must be—they should be, she told herself.

Fortunately the young man's deek was not to be in his father's private office, but next to the room occupied by Mr. Balmhridge—in a kind of railedin endosure.

Like a Sheep Pen

Take the other day for his letters had to be done at once, if had not expended that the dother furst about 1. Was above only with an intelligence which she hoped might an intelligence which she hoped might are the following them with the precision of the machine to which an intelligence which she hoped might are the following the dother for his done the was evidently in a hurry.

Wr. Hale in a Hurry.

Thave an appointment in a little over an hour, he informed her. "So I must rush through with my mail"

She worked rapidly, almost breathlessiv. Where was Phil? When would he come in? The office door. As Philip Hale entered his father is private office, but next to th She had, during the days that had

Like a Sheep Pen

Like a Sheep Pen

Just like a sheep pen." Philip had said in telling her of it on the Sunday night on which he called upon her. Hut I can look over the bars at you when you pass through the outer office. And I hope that my father will send for me often. I will actually, for the first time in my life, welcome his giving me orders, he added.

She had laughed, yet the words made hor a little uneasy. She hoped that he would be very discreet, very unobservant of her when he channed to be in her presence.

She had this morning, as was her habit, arrived at the office a faw minutes before nine. Annie Roomey had met her in the outer room and grented her genially.

"Helle" she had said. The handly "Helle" she had a tit of the party.

met her in the outer room and greeted her genially.

"Hallo" she had said. "I've hardly seen you for the last few days. I guess Mr. Hale's kept you busy, hasn't he?"

"Yes." Agnes rejoined. "He has been very busy himself, you know."

"I guess husiness must be booming."

Annie opined. "And I understand that his swell college son's coming down to help things along for the Summer menths. Had you heard of that."

THINK I shall take a walk," said

Uncle Wiggliy Longears to Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wozzy, his muskrat lady housekeeper, as he came out of the hollow stump house one

"Take a walk" asked Nurse Jane of the rabbit gentleman. "Why, it seems to me that is what you do all the while Every morning, right after breakfast, you start across your farm to see how the vegetables are grow-

"Yes." Agnes answered with well-feigned indifference. "I had heard of Feigned indifference. "I had heard of it."

"He's a good-looker, all right," Annie continued "Looks like the old man, only younger and tailer. He's to be near Bainbridge over there. I guess there's no danger of the kid's head being turned by old hard-face—for all he's so near his office. By the way, has the fat geezer asked you to do any more work for him."

"No, he has not," agnes replied. "I fancy he really could not help himself the other day for his letters had to be done at once. Mr. Hale told me I was right to do them for him. I was sorry I had made such a fuss about it."

"Say, you're too dead easy." Annie warned her. Then, as Agnes turned away, So long, let's go out to hinch logether. Don't linger-longer-Lucy in the office the way you generally do at noontime. Meet me outside as soon as the boss cores out to be dead with hos sorres out to be dead.

Before Agnes could reply, the young man spoke, "Good morning, Miss Morley!" he Said.

"Good morning," Agnes faltered surprised at his salutation.

She hent over her pad again, and Philip started to leave the room, but his father checked him.

"Hold on, Phil" he said. "I did not know that you knew Miss Morley."

"Yes, I know her," the young man said. His tone was almost aggressive.
The girl knew intuitively that he resented his father's abrupt manner of speaking to her. She must save the situation.

"Yes, Mr. Hale, you introduced Mr. Philip Hale to me on the first day that I was in your employ," she said nickly. "That last sentence was the contents of rour letter have been duly noted."

"Yes, I remember." Mr. Hale rejoined. That's all right, Phil. I'll see you in a few minutes."

As the noor closed behind Philip. Aspacs drew a breath of relief. His coming had been even more embarrassing than she had feared.

(To Be Continued.)

"Oh, dear! Nobody loves me! I am no good in this world. No one ever comes to see me. No one knows I am here. I might just as well wither up and blow away. There is no fun in living!"

"Well well! That's sad enough, I should say!" exclaimed the bunn; uncle. "Whoever that is must have goiten out the wrong side of bed this morning. I'll see if I cannot make them more cheerful.

"Hello, there! Good morning! Happy

Bedtime Story For the Little Ones

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE WILD ROSE

BY HOWARD R. GARIS.

Beauty Chats - By Edna Kent Forbes

Permissible Make-up

Ouestions and Answers

Can you tell me some harmics bleaches and broatly croms—things I might make myself, as I like too for from touch to have to follow is to use as little as possible.

Reply—Chrumbers from your green, are splendid bleaches, and can be used diffuted or comfright but flaunting the sallow-colored flag of extreme virtue, or whether it's better for her to dip her fingers ever so lightly in the beauty "Hello, there' Good morning! Happy New Year! Merry Fourth of July! What's the trouble? Why don't you be more cheerful?" asked Uncle Wingily, jumping out from behing the bushes like a Jack-in-the-box.

He was not afraid, for the tail-pulling chimpannee, the ear-scratching cat, the nose-pinching haboen and the ekillery-scalery alligator had turned good, and he need have no fear of them.

while Every morning, right after breakfast, you sant across your farm to see how the vegetables are growing."

"Well, that is just what I am not going to do today," went on the bunny chap.

"What's the trouble? Why don't you be more cheerful? asked Uncle Wingily. The wanted to know. "Why, it looks to me now, not that I want to be snoopy, inquisitive or anything Hke that, but it seems to me you are all ready for a walk now."

"I am," answered Mr. Longears, "But I am not going to walk and look after farm matters now. Too much of one thing is more than enough. I have been looking after my farm every day how since we came to live on it. Now I am going to let the farm look after that is just for myself."

But I where are you going?" asked Nurse Jane.

"All, that is just the beauty of it." spoke tinche Wiggily, cutely, looking down at his pink nose, which was twinkling just like a raisin in a sugar cookie. I do not know where I am going to walk, and do as I please. I may have an adventure. "Like making the money's new coat out of yellow carrots, purple grapes, loud for the wingily, wanted and you came?" "I heard out talking," said Unite will be started, not paying any attention to his farm, which was doing very well by itself now, as fall would soon arrive, and most of the things were ripe, ready to be gathered into the cellar.

The bunny uncle had not gone very far before, down near an old atone wall, he heard a voice saying:

"I heard on a doon he came to a who will one will one will one wall, he heard a voice saying:

"Hello, there 'Merry New't Merry Merry Fourth of July about and the wind hand." An and the wond and the say out the content of the principle was on a fail where the wind have a pick-in-the-box.

He was not a free was for the tall-pulling chimping out from behing the wind have no fear of them.

But it was none of these creatures he saw in the corner of the sile was none of them.

But it was none of the sall the want in was none of these creatures he saw in the corner of the sile was none of these crea ture, especially those of us who live Reply-Den't use any dre at all-at and work in cities, that the fresh least not now. Hairdressers cannot rec-

To make up or not to make up— However, we are neutral on this that's the question that is always topic also; this article is only to under discussion in newspapers, show those who want to learn the magazines, and everyday conversa- proper way to make up, so they can tion. Whether it's better for a get a natural effect and not go about woman to go around with a pasty with a red flag flying in each cheek.

Obvious make-up is pretty nearly immoral if only because it is inartistic.

Get the best quality rouge, for this will be pure and harmless to the skin, and get a dark rouge if you are a brunette, a brighter red if you are a blonde. The sort that comes in small cakes is the best, as it gives a more natural effect. Do not fill the skin with cold cream first, for the cream will work through and show the artificiality.

A wool puff usually comes with each box; rub this over the cake, then rub your fingers over the puff, and spread this faint bit of color on and spread this faint bit of color on the cheek, otherwise you will get too much in a spot, and give the whole away. If you are young, run the color up near the eyes; if older, keep it down lower in the cheek; If the face is thin, rub it back to the ears. Put only the least blush tint on, in any case, and rub a trifle into the chin; and if your ears show, the least hit to the lobe. For if your cheeks were naturally pink, the blood would be in the chin and ears too; by tinting these you bring a glow all over the face. Next week there will be a bit more about make-up.

Questions and Answers complexion of perfect health is a de-nied luxury. So why not a touch of the hair trade as well as the other indus-pink if it adds a little to one's looks? tries. Try massage and hair tonies to re-Surely anything that adds to the store the life to the gray parts, and wait beauty of an object is its own excuse! artificial measures.

lagrated by George Matthew Adams

14 YEARS AGO TODAY

The month of July was a record breaker for the sale of public school land for what is considered a dull month in real estate. The receipts from the sale of land during the month amounted to over $200,000. Nearly all of the land is in west Texas and the sale is indicative of the larga quantity that will be disposed of within the next few years.

H. M. Patterson returned to the city this morning from a trip to his New Mexico ranch.
Father Francis Roy has returned from an eight days missionary trip to Tucson, Ark.
Mrs. Nick Carson left for her old home in Louisiana this morning on a visit of two months.
Mrs. E. V. Pickrell bad a most enjoyable reunion and burthday party yesterday with her three daughters and her son. C. S. Pickrell.
Secretary A. W. Gifford, of the Miner's association, is still contined to his room with rheumatism.
Deputy sheriff J. H. Comstock left last night for Chicago on business.

ONE OF SCIENCE'S WONDERS

nan. They make me feel worse. They are besuiful but they are like a dance of a big party. I am tired of them. I want a quiet little flower."

So the servants took away the big bouquets and Uncle Wiggily, hiding under the man's window, smiled. "I know what will please him," said.

BY DAISY DEAN.

HE public is waiting with much interest for the first appearance of Annette Kellerman's million dollar picture, "A Daughter of the Gods," Miss Kellerman worked on this pleture for six months or so, and considers it her masterplece. The story has an oriental setting, and has received the highest praise from critics who have seen it.

"ROMEO AND JULIET"

"ROMEO AND JULIET"

The cast of "Romeo and Juliet."

Metro picture in which Francis X.

Rushman and Beverly Bayne play the leading toles, is notable. It includes a Booth a Southern, a Mantell, a Kemble and a Davenport. Its leading players are Shaksperean states and actreases. Many of them have starred in Shaksperean parts, and mearly every member of the cust has had a classical training. The only exceptions to this rule are some of the young girls who play the pages and smaller parts, where youth and heauty are the principal requirements.
Summinum settings are made necessary by the wealth of the two great lamilies, the Montagues and the Caplets.

A remarkable bit of trick photogramy produces a striking scene in The Fugitive," a Thunbouser feature to be released soom. The police in-spector holds in his hand a photograph of Florence La Badie, the fugitive.

"When I get you Fil — "he threatens, and, portraying his thoughts, two tiny policemen come from behind the photograph. Miss talkadie comes to life, and after a struggle the policeman leads her of discusting, untilly danderuff correct its cause. Washing DISGUSTING DANDRUFF

threatens, and, portraying his thoughts, two tiny policemen come from behind the photograph Miss LaBadie comes to life and after a struggle the policeman leads her awar.

Ann Pennington is completing her second silent starring vehicle. The little "Ziezfeld Follies" star made such a distinct success in her debut as "Suste Snowflake" that the famous Players requisitioned her services again as soon as Mr. Ziegfeld declared the latest edition of the "Follies" in which she is surpassing her smooth running condition as to permit Miss Pennington to devote her day time to picture work.

About 100 cubic feet of Wisconsin was moved into Illinois when Essanay transferred the stone and shrubs of an entire soone taken in the Delis to its studio yards in Chicago.

HOROSCOPE. will not stain the nair or make it greasy.

Parisian Sage can be obtained from Kelly & Follard's and druggists everywhere. It is not expensive.—Adv. STROLOGERS read this as an

MAYR'S WONDERFUL REMEDY For STOMACH trouble ONE DOSE WILL CONVINCE

Gall Stones, Cancer and Ulcers of the Stomach and Intestines, Auto-Intoxication, Yellow Jaundice, Appendicitis and

NO SICK STOMACH, INDIGESTION, GAS

what you just ale is souring on ar atomach or lies like a lump of d. refusing to digest, or you beich as and enectate sour, indigested food, surn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stouach headache, you call surely get relief in five minutes, the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepain the room the man opened his eyes the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases of Pape's Diapepain is harmless; tastes like candy, though each dose will direct and all the food you earl, beades, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite, but what will please you most, and and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to hardless or liver pills for biljourness or though which will be an additional to the food you want to go hack it would need to resort to hardless or liver pills for biljourness or the stable with a healthy appetite, but what will please you most, and and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to hardless or liver pills for biljourness or the stable with a healthy appetite, but what will please you most, with the control of the proper will be enthusiastic for you want to go hack it would not will not need to resort to hardless or liver pills for biljourness or the stable with a healthy appetite, but what will please you most, with the control of the proper will be enthusiastic for you want to go hack it would be settled in the man's house me. To make the settle in the wild russ and risk lim. One or two teaspoonfuls will be enthusiastic for you want to go hack to your and to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and to go you want to go hack to your and you will n

From The Herald of This Date, 1902.

He hopped on and soon he came to a house where a rich man lived. And the rich man was not happy. He was ill and cross. He had all the medicine he could take and more, and still he was not happy. He had all he could eat, and more, and still he was not happy. He had all he could eat, and more, and still he was not happy. And in the room where he sat ill, in and easy chair, were all sorts of flowers from the green houses.

"Take them away," fretfully said the man. They make me feel worse. They westerday with her three daughters and